

Security & Risk Management Group, LLC (SRMG) Announces New Security and Safety Training and Education Services

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 20, 2009 — Training and education play key roles in the level of security and safety that exists in any environment. In our current economy, however, many businesses and organizations cannot afford to send their personnel to expensive courses at off-site locations. To fill this gap, Scott Nelson, the president of SRMG, announced today that the company is expanding its service offerings to include world-class, cost-effective training programs and seminars; executive coaching; and facilitated experiential learning for both the public and private sectors. "This step is a logical progression for SRMG that will allow us to supply the on-site, customized instruction that our clients need on subjects such as physical security and life safety, executive protection, and crisis management," explained Nelson.

In the corporate education arena, SRMG's team of advisors sets it apart from the competition. "These individuals are some of the most qualified, recognized professionals in their areas of expertise," said Nelson. "Each of them bring special skills to the table from decades of executive leadership in corporate America, law enforcement, and the military and at educational institutions in the United States and overseas. They provide a unique combination of real-world experience and cutting-edge theory not typically available elsewhere."

Information about the new training and education service offerings is available on SRMG's Web site at <http://www.srmg-link.com> in the Services channel.

About Security & Risk Management Group, LLC (SRMG)

In today's ever-changing, increasingly heightened security environment, your business assets and personal interests need protection as never before. SRMG, a consulting company specializing in independent global security and risk management services for corporations and individuals, can work with you to develop a customized solution that will successfully secure both your business and personal environments.

Visit our Web site at <http://www.srmg-link.com> to learn how SRMG can create a more secure environment for you, increasing your productivity, enhancing the shareholder value of your corporations, and improving the quality of both your business and family life through our proven secur-link process.

Contact:

Alexandra Braconi
Vice President of Security Information Development
949-350-5102
aleksbraconi@srmg-link.com

###